Dom rules the way

NORMANHURST'S Dominic Cantrall is so passionate about Australian rules footy, he wants to attract more juniors to the sport.

"The 14-year-old started playing Aussie rules when he was six but stopped when he was eight.

"I don't actually know why I stopped playing," he said. "But now I just think the game on its own is just a beautiful thing.

"There is such a high skill level to play Aussie rules, and it is a game of team work. I just love it."

Dominic is keen for more kids to get involved in the game.

"It's just such a great sport in general," he said. "Some people can really benefit from playing it.

"I don't want to keep it all to myself. It's a wonderful game and people should know about it."

In two years he won awards for best all-rounder for academic achievement and sports achievement at St Leo's Catholic College.

He currently plays for the Hornsby Berowra Eagles and is also playing representative Aussie Rules.
